Real estate developers and consultants are of the view that the Budget 2017-18 is reform-oriented, comprehensive and reflect government's seriousness on the mission of 'Housing for All'. They say the industry status being given to affordable housing will help increase liquidity as banks will be keen to extend loan to the developers for affordable housing.

THE LEADER IN REAL ESTATE INFORMATION

Agrees Ssumit Berry, Managing Director, BDI Group, who says, "This announcement is a landmark for the real estate sector which will open new avenues for the affordable housing segment. We welcome and appreciate this decision of government, it will help the sector get various benefits of infrastructure sector which was a long time demand of the realty industry. The new measure will reduce costs for developers and attract more investors. It is great push for the housing for all vision and will also benefit the first time buyers."
